DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 1-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

It is not understood what are “a product”, “physical products” and “a device” being defined in the claims. What is the difference between “a position code” and “image points”? What are the relationship between the “imaginary surface”, “activation area”, “template” and “writing surface”? What are “digital representation of at least part of the product”, “image point in the digital representation of the activation area” and “a position on the imaginary surface”?

3. Claims 1-30 are rejected as failing to define the invention in the manner required by 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph.

The claim(s) are narrative in form and replete with indefinite and functional or operational language. The structure which goes to make up the device must be clearly and positively specified. The structure must be organized and correlated in such a manner as to present a complete operative device. The claim(s) must be in one sentence form only. Note the format of the claims in the patent(s) cited.

Art Unit: 2674

4. The claims are rejected based on the best understanding of the claim language by the examiner.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

6. Claims 1-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Dymetman et al (WO 99/50787 hereinafter Dymetman).

As to claims 1, 2, 15-17, 19, 20, 21, 23, Dymetman discloses an electronic device for a user may access electronic documents and cause functions to be performed at a local or remote device via interaction with hardcopy documents. The device comprising coded substrates in which visible or invisible machine-readable markings defining a page identification code (this corresponds to a digital representation of at least part of the product, which digital representation comprises image points). Dymetman discloses device having at least one activation area having a position code (see page 17, line 28 to page 18, line 10). Dymetman also teaches each image point in the digital representation of the activation area corresponding to a position on the imaginary surface (digital page, see page 18, line 21 to page 19, line 12 for example).

As to claims 3-6, 18, 22, 25, 26, Dymetman teaches a pad of coded substrates designed for sending notes (page 17, lines 28-33, this reads on a digital template comprising a writing surface with a digital representation of at least one activation area with a position code as claimed).

Art Unit: 2674

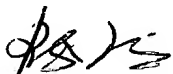

As to claim 7, Dymetman teaches the device comprising a display (page 28, lines 32-33).

As to claims 8-14, 24, 27-30, Dymetman teaches the device comprising physical products, storing the image of the product, and determining the position on the imaginary surface as claimed (e.g., Figs. 1, 3-5, 9, page 18, line 15 to page 19, line 25, page 28, line 6 to page 30, line 27).
